

The 7th Caribbean Youth Environment and Development Congress and the
the 2nd TUNZA-GEO for Youth Workshop for the Caribbean Sub-region
Grande Anse, Grenada. 30th October – 3rd November 2008

“Climate change, water availability and the emerging nexus of environmental issues: impediments to achieving the MDGs in the Caribbean”.

The specific objectives of the Congress are:

1. To review the status of youth and environment activities in the Caribbean.
2. To provide training on integrated water resources management and climate change advocacy.
3. To develop mechanisms to ensure that environmental youth organisations work in synergy with major development agencies operating in the Caribbean.
4. To identify strategies that will capture the imagination and energise Caribbean youth to become active participants in the environment and sustainable development movement.
5. To formulate the framework for a work plan for the CYEN for 2009 and 2010
